

Cronin's Hornpipe (G)

trad. Irish Hornpipe. Transkription: Frank Weber
 CDs: Paddy Keenan & Paddy Glackin: Dublin (1978); Ronan Browne & Peter O'Loughlin: Touch Me If You Dare (2002); Na Connerys: Fire in our Hearts, Part 2 (1997); Comhaltas: Fionn Seisiún 1; Cherish the Ladies: Live (1997); Gerry O'Connor: Irish Folk Festival 1992 - Next Generation;

Paddy Cronin is an Irish fiddler. Cronin was born in Ré Buí near Gneeveguilla, County Kerry in the 1920s. He was taught fiddle by Padraig O'Keeffe. In 1949, Seamus Ennis recorded him on acetate disc for Radió Éireann, copies of which are held in the Irish Traditional Music Archive. Shortly after making these recordings, he left Ireland and emigrated to Boston in the United States. During the 1950s, he continued to record, becoming very well known through the 78rpm discs he made for the O'Byrne-De Witt label. In 1975, Paddy released The Rakish Paddy LP with Fiddler Records of Seattle, and in 1977 released Kerry's Own Paddy Cronin with Outlet records of Belfast. In 2007, Cronin was awarded the prestigious Gradam Saoil, or Lifetime Achievement Award, by the Irish Gaelic-language television station TG4, in honour of his contribution to Irish Traditional Music over six decades. (source: en.wikipedia.org, Mar. 2008)

alternative Harmonien von Frank Dürschner, Nov. 2004: